BANNERS OF DESTINY

When a group of school children marched down Commerce Street Thursday morning with their placards announcing the things that they stood for, we suddenly had a strange vision of that same red-blooded army in the years ahead, marching on with their placards still raised demanding as the citizens of Mexia, the health, the higher ideals, the patriotism that they had marched for on that cold February morning so long ago.

But will they carry the same placards, and will their dreams and hopes still be the same or will they be smirched and lowered by the years that have slipped in between? Will they have fallen out of the ranks, and drifted along the sidewalks, content with less than the best, and counting costs more than the results that wait for them at the end?

In a magnificent building on Red River Street, in a building on McKinney Street, and in another on Sumpter Street the future of this city is being molded. The lessons of leadership, the lessons of disciplineship, the lessons of citizenship, are being taught. The destiny of Mexia is in their hands, and the banners they are taught to bear now will be the banners that will wave over our city when they have come into full leadership.

These banners are not only being made in the schoolroom but there are others who are assisting in the task. The great printers who are designing and lettering them are the teachers, the parents, and all other beings with whom they come in contact. Some of the plans will come from books left by great men, others will come from the trash that these young citizens pick up and read with zest, and most of them will come from the life that they come in direct contact with, and conditions as they are presented to them, by actual surroundings. Burbank has said, "If we paid no more attention to our plants than we have to our children, we would now be living in a jungle of weeds."

CITIZENSHIP
Thought for the Day

By A. Garland Adair

THE GOLDEN RULE OF CITIZENSHIP

Americans are taught from their youth onwards, that competition is necessary to the health and progress of the nation, or as Herbert Spencer puts it, "Society flourishes by the antagonism of its atoms."

But the obvious golden rule is that co-operation is good and competition bad, and that national greatness is fostered and flourishes by the mutual aid of individual citizens. So well known is this principle that in all great military or commercial enterprises, individualism has been subordinated to collective, obedient and harmonious action. We have discovered, as Americans, that a house divided against itself is certain to fall.

A community divided by internal feuds and torn by factional fighting cannot hold its own against a united people in some other community. We know that in a baseball team, a regiment, a ship's crew, a school or in any successful business organization that the "antagonism of atoms" would mean defeat and failure. We know that a nation composed of antagonistic citizens, would be ruinous to national perpetuity.

As Robert Blanchford has said:

"We know that if men are to be found and govern cities, to build bridges and make roads, to establish universities, to sail ships and sink mines, and create educational systems and policies and religions, they must work together and not against one another. Surely these things are as obvious as the fact that there could not be a hive unless the bees worked as a colony and on the lines of mutual aid."

Co-operation is a principle of citizenship which cannot be violated without dire consequences to the nation.

BLAKE SMITH

Dr. Oates, following which the company present made advances probably unequalled since the historical charge of the Light Brigade.

When the last of the many courses had been served, Garland Adair arose and told Mr. Smith that the moment now had arrived when he should be told just what a great man he was.

He explained the purpose of the assembly as follows:

E. L. Smith was then called upon to tell whether he was "the carpenter or the carpenter's assistant." The reference being to the war time story of the man who unable to find employment elsewhere, took the advise of a friend and went to the ship yards and got him a job as a carpenter, which he was not. He got a board and hammer and walked about the premises. In a short while he was joined by another man, who didn't have anything in his hand but who shadowed him closely all the first day. The next morning, this was repeated until the "carpenter" growing more uneasy all the time, stopped the fellow in a dark passage and said, "Look here, I want you to tell me what you mean by following me around this way?" "Why don't you know who I am?" asked the second party, to which the first speaker replied, "No!" "Why, I'm your assistant" came the quick reply.

E. L. was unable to state just who was the carpenter in their relations. He paid a high tribute to his associate in the E. L. Smith Oil Company and inseparable companion and friend. During the many years of dealings together, E. L. stated that there had not been an instance in which they "locked horns" but that their dealings together had always been happy and, he was glad to say, of the most honorable kind. He joined in the general pleasure of being present in honor of Blake and wished for him many more birthdays and pleasures.

David Murphy was next called upon as "another assistant of Blake."

He stated that he had known Blake practically all of his life and his parents before him, at the same time paying a high tribute to his ancestry. "I rejoice in the success of Blake Smith just as much as I would at my own success," he said, emphasizing this remark by stating that he meant that in all earnestness. He was referred to as the type of man whom success does not ruin, a man, however successful in financial affairs, always had time to check up on the things that money cannot buy and nourish them with plenty of the milk of human kindness.

Following these remarks, others were called upon at Random until every one of the seventeen who surrounded the table had spoken from sincere hearts of their love for this splendid type of citizen, of the pride that was theirs in having been closely associated with him in a business and friendly personal way, and quite a number confessed that all they have in the way of financial success was due to Blake Smith. Ringing through the talks was an informal sincerity which spoke more than volumes, stressing the simplicity, generosity and optimism of the man honored.

J. K. Hughes stated that he had known Blake Smith ever since he had come to Mexia, that it was pleasure to him to be a fellow citizen with him, to work with him for Mexia, and to watch him prosper in business and join in the expressions of regard and love offered by others who had already spoken his sentiments.

A. H. Berry, in speaking of Mr. Smith, stated that Blake had contributed most helpfully in the organization of the company with which he was associated and that he knew of no one whom he would go to quicker when worried or in distress than to Blake Smith. He called attention to his modesty in all his dealings, to his optimism, to his unselfish generosity, when a man needs a friend and when citizens are wanted in a common cause.

J. Desenberg, was called upon, as one of the citizens whom Mr. Smith had agreed to let have some of the wealth of the community and who had known him much longer than the most of those gathered. In responding, he stated that Blake Smith was a gentleman of the highest type and a man whom Mexia was proud to call her own.

Weaver Barnett was introduced as a man who had often been caught in the office with Blake and E. L. Smith and who might be able to tell something unusual, if he only would. In

Business Girls of Carroll Club Find Substitute for Palm Beach In Own New York Swimming Pool

THE Florida east coast may have its attractions for society misses and matrons when the snow flurries in the North, but the business and professional young women of the Carroll Club of New York, whose work keeps them at their desks, have found that their swimming pool affords them an excellent substitute for the beaches of the South.

The Carroll Club was founded several years ago by Mrs. Nicholas F. Brady, prominent New York society leader, to business girls who, limited in coming down to the opportunity of joining one of the existing women's social clubs of the city. In dedicating the club to the memory of her mother, Mrs. Mary Carroll Garvan, Mrs. Brady provided for certain definite cultural and educational aims in the charter of the Carroll Club, as well as for the usual social and recreative advantages.

Jack Womack who has been in the Cadet Sanatorium at Fort Worth for the past several weeks, has returned to his home and the news is glad to report that he is much better. Mr. Womack is one of our most valuable citizens at Texarkana and he is always interested in his many friends.

Major Herbert Murphy, adjutant of the Cadet Corps at A. and M. College, came up Friday to spend the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Murphy. He was accompanied by Lieut. A. D. Magruder, of San Antonio, also in the cadet corps.

Jesse McLendon who has been continuously in their down town offices, to enjoy the quiet of the lounge or reading room, the soothing effect of the swimming pool, the excitement of basketball or gymnasium, or the diversion of mah-jong and bridge.

The swimming pool is one of the most popular of the club's attractions. Surrounded with tall French mirrors and brimming with clear, almost sparkling, blue water from the Croton lakes, it is considered one of New York's most beautiful pools. The Carroll girls take to it like ducks and as an indication of their keenness for water they are rapidly developing an excellent swimming team.

In other fields formerly occupied exclusively by the opposite sex the Carroll girls are showing aptitude and ability. They have already produced one of the best feminine basketball teams in New York, they have a number of stellar performers in handball, tennis, softball and golf, a first rate hockey team and a crack indoor baseball team.

To the girls of the Carroll Club, however, this only enhances its attraction. They troop in every afternoon and evening, tired mentally and physically after strenuous

Masonic Patriotic Program at First Methodist Church

Notwithstanding the threatening weather, sickness in the city and some other functions, the First Methodist church was comfortably filled Friday night by members of the Masonic fraternity and their families and friends to witness the Educational and Patriotic program arranged by Springfield Lodge No. 74, A. F. and A. M., in celebration of Washington's birthday.

Hon. Mika Thomas of Dallas, past grand master of the Texas Grand Lodge, past officer in all Scottish Rite bodies, and who says he has taken all degrees conferred in Masonry, including Buckingham, was the honored guest and the principal speaker of the evening. He was brought over from Waco in the afternoon and entertained by the committee appointed for the purpose at an informal banquet at the Majestic cafe. This committee was composed of J. D. Arrington, Frank Bolton, J. F. Denning, Ben F. Stollenwerck, Geo. M. Tidwell, M. B. Webb and N. P. Houx.

At 8 o'clock as Mrs. Roy Akin commenced to play the Doxology on the new pipe organ, the Eastern Star, led by the efficient worthy matron, Mrs. Oscar Denning, entered and took seats that had been reserved for them.

Rev. W. B. Andrews offered the invocation, and Frank Bolton acted for the worshipful master, Colon S. Phillips, who was sick, and explained the objects of the meeting.

Rev. Andrews delivered a short and splendid address on "Equality and Enforcement of Law," after which the members of the Eastern Star led in singing "My Country, 'Tis of Thee."

Mr. Thomas then spoke for more than one hour and delivered a splendid address on "George Washington, The Mason." He told how Washington had gathered around him members nation under the fairest government ever known. His splendid address was given the closest attention throughout and was freely complimented.

After another song "God Be With You," led by the Eastern Star, Rev. Andrews pronounced the benediction, and there was an informal reception for Mr. Thomas, many taking advantage of the opportunity to meet this distinguished Mason and splendid Christian gentleman.

B. W. Collier Has Birthday Dinner With Few Friends

Friday, February 22nd was Mr. B. W. Collier's 77th birthday, and he celebrated the event by having a few of his friends come and take dinner with him. His daughter, Mrs. J. M. Tidwell, prepared the feast at her home on South McKinney street, and the invited guests who availed themselves of the invitation were Messers Warren Steele, John Melton, D. A. Waler, J. P. Yeldell, A. J. Cox and N. P. Houx, who enjoyed the feast and the company to the limit.

Mrs. Tidwell was assisted in the affair by her husband, Minor, who brought the guests to their home in his car, and by her daughter, Miss Louise, in serving the dinner, which was all that any one could wish.

There were two big turkeys—one to decorate the table with and one carved to eat, and it was thought at one time that the decoration would have to be cut into, when John Melton announced that he had not eaten anything for two days, preparing for this happy event, but the numerous trimmings and accessories saved the day and all had a sufficiency without disturbing the other bird.

Mr. Collier was the recipient of many congratulations and good wishes for many more birthdays, and Mr. and Mrs. Tidwell were declared to be past masters as hosts.

Jim Stanberry is on the sick list at present.

EMPEROR OF SCOTLAND

The modern ocean liner is a wonder ship, a combination of a home, sweet home and the most luxurious club in the world, with hundreds of sailors and sailors to minister to the traveler's comfort. While the captain, staff captain and other officers are the most important personages, the sailors of the gentler sex are much in evidence and very useful. Mrs. Ethel Andrews, now on a cruise to the Mediterranean on the Empress of Scotland, is not only social director of that big ship but is in command of the 300 women who serve in various capacities on the Canadian Pacific Railway's Atlantic ships. A bookstall attendant wears a blue uniform with brass buttons on the waist. When the Empress of Canada left New York recently on a voyage around the world, she was the first Canadian vessel to commence such a trip with a regular book store and experienced attendants as part of her equipment. She carried, also, a well equipped free library and the globe girdlers have 1,000 volumes, many of them on travel, at their service so that they can become well posted concerning a country before the ship reaches it. The books on travel were selected from an interesting list compiled by Fanny Butcher, literary editor of the Chicago Tribune. This list has been published by the Canadian Pacific in a brochure entitled "Ports of a Thousand Romances." Canadian authors have been given due prominence in this floating library, and the world's "best sellers," modern and ancient, are touring that world on its shelves.

Heck Tells Why
Baseball Meet
Was Called Off

By HECK

The scheduled meeting of Mexia Baseball Fans at the Hurdleston Hotel last Monday night was called off as you know for many reasons with old man Bad Weather running first in the Handicap, but to me I have a sneaking hunch that Jess McLendon had a sore tonsil and couldn't sing; Dock Jackson had a flat tire and Frank Cogdell burned his tongue with hot soup and couldn't say "hod ziggidy" — any one of these would almost cause Congress to recess so it's a cinch it would blow up our baseball meeting. Now the meeting will be held next Monday night, February 25th at 7:30 p. m. at the Elks Club and everybody knows where the Elks Club is, so I don't have to tell you. I don't know just what the local club bosses have up their sleeves but I can promise you that there will be no Shenanigans, Gimicks, Whangdoodles, Deep Stuff or anything like that pulled o you and no one will be allowed to talk who has his fingers crossed. The whole thing is this: They want you fans to congregate and go over the whole baseball situation with them and they want your opinion upon a lotta things — whether your opinion amounts to a dun or not, they want it. Now, there wasn't enough showed up last Monday night to even interest a promoter of a rooster fight but I'm expecting a whole flock of you to be present next Monday night at the Elks Club and if Old Man Flu will let go his strangle hold on me, I'll be there in a bunch, so make up your mind to be there, you fans, and let's get this matter settled pronto.

Better Chances For Pitchers In 1924By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Better pitching and a corresponding decrease in mile and two-mile hitting may result from the decision of the major league executives to be more thrifty in the use of balls next season.

Since the rule was passed against any and all kinds of tampering with the ball, the umpires had become almost fanatical in keeping in play a spotless ball, which, in the strictest interpretation of the rules, could mean nothing but a new ball.

After ball had been slightly turf-stained or roughed up a little by a smack against the wire or the stands, it was thrown out of play and a new ball tossed to the pitcher. Batters could protest against a ball and invariably it would be thrown out, even if there was a question about it.

This resulted not only in a very material increase of expense in providing balls, but it imposed a handicap upon all the pitchers, as every one who has handled a baseball knows it is much and recall that Poincare ditched these recommendations.

They admit there is perhaps more tendency in France now than there was then. Then fall of the franc has been roughed up enough to get a tight purchase on it.

Veteran pitchers, or those with several years' big league experience, were better able to meet the handicap than young pitchers coming up from minor leagues, where the umpires were not so opposed to the keeping in play of a used ball.

There seems to be little doubt among the players that the ball is more lively than it used to be and, of course, this contributed toward the increase in long hitting, but the lively ball could not have been entirely responsible for the general let down of pitching.

American League umpires were ordered by Ban Johnson late last season to keep the balls in play as long as possible, and it is understood that the National League umpires will be instructed to do the same next season.

There are no figures to show what effect Johnson's orders had on hitting last season, but the pitchers agree that they were able to pitch better with used balls.

U. S. OFFICIALS IN BERLIN FEAR SMASH

BERLIN, Feb. 22 (United Press).—American officials here believe that Germany's temporary return to "normalcy" is dangerously liable to be followed by a terrible smash.

Some of these authorities on whom the American government relies for its information as to German conditions foresee that an era of starvation—even in the agricultural communities—can ensue. Their view is very pessimistic. They fear that unless an earlier reparation settlement comes, conditions similar to the famine in the Volga district will arise within the German farming provinces.

Farmers, they fear, may plant less for their next harvest than they have hitherto done. Such a course would naturally bring with it a famine in the cities, too, as Germany never has been able to produce enough grains and meats for her populace.

At the moment, Germany's visible supply of meats and grains is surprisingly large. The food stores are jammed to overflowing with the plenty of the land.

Reparations Failure?

But, it is explained, this plenty is due to a dumping process on the part of the big land owners. For a time they held back their wares, as they did not care to accept falling per marks.

The Market Flooded.

With the introduction of the rentenmark they flooded the markets with their goods. But they killed too much cattle, it was claimed.

This pouring of cattle and grain on the city market is destined—still in the opinion of American officials—to lend upon the work of the Wirth experts to a serious collapse probably only a few months hence. The reason for this excessive slaughter of cattle lies in the fact that the landlords were compelled to gather hastily money for new taxes.

It is foreseen, however, that the agrarians will reach a point where they say that there is no profit for themselves, but that instead their substance is eaten up by too heavy tax burdens.

If they reach this point, it is then figured that they will adopt the scheme of the Russian peasants, namely, the planting of less acreage and the slaughter of fewer cattle. The result of such a policy would clearly be catastrophic.

The rentenmark is now thoroughly stable. The nation has confidence in it. But those who delve beneath the surface realize that it is only a transitional currency and that a stable gold money must be introduced. Moreover, an excess of exports over imports and an excess of state income over outgo must be achieved if actual stability of currency and conditions is to be had in mid-Europe.

But, it is explained, this plenty is due to a dumping process on the part of the big land owners. For a time they held back their wares, as they did not care to accept falling per marks.

The Market Flooded.

With the introduction of the rentenmark they flooded the markets with their goods. But they killed too much cattle, it was claimed.

This pouring of cattle and grain on the city market is destined—still in the opinion of American officials—to lend upon the work of the Wirth experts

BONHAM, Texas, Feb. 23.—The "Pathé Sun" has again made its appearance on the streets of Bonham after a hard fight against adverse circumstances by Joe Lair, its 13-year-old publisher.

The gloom of the above cited authorities is not shared, however, in all German business circles. In many quarters there is an almost uncanny optimism as to the future. And there certainly is full confidence in the Rentenmark. The population is no longer tormented with the woes of a failing currency and this has caused a considerable light to dawn in a hitherto cheerless gloomy atmosphere.

Now, with prospects bright on every hand, Joe has again put his paper into circulation. It is issued weekly and consists of eight pages, four columns to the page. It is neatly written in colored pencils and well edited. The editorial policy is:

"To say what I please and what I believe to be the truth."

EARLY SPRING

There is a faint green veil high in the tops of elm trees, and the yellow daffodils have opened gold beneath my window ledge, And there is green upon a distant hill.

A thrill runs shivering through the damp, cold earth. Dead smells are gone, the air is clean and sweet. Some hand has drifted violets thru the leaves, And sprinkled daisies at my eager feet.

—Sadi Kirgan.

A wise man says just enough and then puts the lid on.

How much louder it sounds when some one else slams the door!

And the sweetness of some women reminds us of sugar-coated pills.

ARBOR DAY PROGRAM

A very unique program was given by the Seniors for the Juniors Thursday in keeping with Arbor Day. The Seniors planted a tree, handing the spade with the Senior colors on it to the Juniors to keep and protect the tree with. Next year this class of Juniors as Seniors will hand the spade down to the class below them, thus establishing a custom to be long remembered in old Mexia High School.

Robert Storey, president of the Senior Class made a short talk telling the purpose of the tree and the reason for planting it. This talk was followed by several humorous burials of different troublesome Senior subjects. Miriam Bass buried a tiny pony, significant to Latin students; Marguerite Franks, a test tube remembered by all Chemistry students; Machon Forrest, an English classic; Valma Wallace a compass, known to all Math students; J. L. Gallin an outside reading report for History, something we are all familiar with; Herman Adams a "Detention Card," familiar to almost every student in M. H. S.

Aileen Title then presented the Senior spade and Marvin Bonnett, president of the Junior Class accepted the spade. A short talk by Mr. Andrews followed, and then Mr. Puckett addressed the students in his pleasing and instructive manner. The program ended with the singing of the school song and of "America."

Banker Delivers Address To Class At High School

At the request of Miss Whitaker, instructor of economics, Mr. David Murphy addressed the members of her class Thursday. Mr. Murphy's address was exceptionally suitable for its content and adaptability to those who heard it. He stressed the importance of certain apparently minor matters in the making out of checks and deposit slips and showed the pupils why these were important. In a broader way, he explained the nature of a bank as a depository and a lending agent, and emphasized the obligation which it is under to its customers. In closing Mr. Murphy gave the salient details of the Federal Reserve System, and paid tribute to Woodrow Wilson by saying that the Federal Reserve Act made American participation in the recent war possible, and that without the Federal Reserve the allies must have suffered.

The opportunity of hearing a practical talk from so able an authority as Mr. Murphy was considered by both class and instructor as being really educational.

CAREFUL TRAINING IN CITIZENSHIP AND BETTER ENGLISH DEMONSTRATED IN IMPRESSIVE SUMPTER PARADE

The pupils of the Sumpter Street School, demonstrating what months of careful training and supervision have done for them, gave one of the most splendid exhibitions Mexia has seen. Thursday morning, when with flying colors they marched six hundred strong down Commerce street, not only to show Mexia what Sumpter Street School stands for but what the future citizens of Mexia are going to demand.

Despite the fact that the morning was gray and cold, there was an untouched enthusiasm about the moving line of young Americans as they swung down the street bearing their posters with their slogans, "Down With Bad English," "A Yell and a Cheer, Better English this Year." "We are on the March for Better English," "To Read Good Books we Always Try, and Better English is Our Cry," "Get the Dictionary Habit." The younger grades carried clever little picture posters made by themselves illustrating the correct use of idioms. One little class displayed the tree of errors, a tree bearing "I seen," "I ain't," "I done," and other errors in its branches, with a child with an axe raised to cut the tree down.

The parade left Sumpter Street at ten o'clock. It was led by the Chief of Police, wearing a white satin badge with "Sumpter" on it, and riding a horse draped with the national colors. Following him was a car bearing on the back flags and a poster reading, "Sumpter Street School Stands for Patriotism, Health, Better Speech." In the car was Mrs. White, President of the Sumpter Street School Parent-Teachers Association and Mr. Puckett, City Superintendent of the Mexia Public Schools. Each wore a white satin badge.

Following the car came a child dressed as Uncle Sam, accompanied by a Red Cross nurse, representing the Good Health that Sumpter Street stands for. They were followed by two boys bearing the dictionary, decorated in red, white and blue. The grades of the school then came in order, the little primary class leading. At the back of the line, barred from the regular line by a poster which read, "No Admittance to Sumpter Street School," came twelve boys representing Carelessness, Ignorance, Slang, and other undesirable qualities. Some feet behind this group came a

Friday afternoon a colored boy, age about 16, was thrown from the running board of a car, said to be traveling at a high rate of speed on the Mexia-Tehuacana road, and seriously if not fatally injured. It is not known whether or not the negro is dead, but from reports of eye witnesses who were driving a car directly behind the one in which the boy was riding, he seemed to be dying when they left him. They reported that the car on which he was riding was, as best they could remember, a Dodge roadster, practically new, and that two men, evidently intoxicated, were in it. The car did not stop, they said, after the boy was thrown off. Officers are working on the case now.

REV. G. T. REAVES ADDRESSES HIGH SCHOOL BODY THURSDAY

Thursday, February 21st, Rev. Reaves of the First Christian church held the devotional exercises at the Mexia High School and later gave an address in honor of our first president, George Washington.

Rev. Reaves said that the qualities that gave Washington his commanding position were courage, determination and faith in himself, others and God. Washington stands preeminent in these virtues just as his monument stands with its head in the clouds at our National Capital. America has but one great shrine, the unpretentious tomb at Mount Vernon. Rev. Reaves complimented the honor students and urged them to continue to have faith in themselves and the courage of their convictions. In our early history Washington was the first national hero. Since that time when occasion demands it, God has always provided us leaders greater than the crisis. In our own day, when we needed a leader, Woodrow Wilson was at hand.

Rev. Reaves' address was thoroughly enjoyed by faculty and student body and his return is anticipated with pleasure.

Through A Woman's Eyes

SCRAPBOOKS

By SADI KIRGAN

When Elbert Hubbard went down on the Titanic he left behind a collection of poems and various clippings in a scrap book. He had not contemplated that they would ever be printed. He was making instead, a collection of the best that many men and women had said, for his own reading, the thoughts and ideas that he needed to steady him as he went about his tremendous work.

After the loss of the great journalist the scrap book was printed. It presents a marvelous arrangement of bits of literature from lists of every day verses of contemporary writers, to the most exalted moments of the greatest classical genius. None of them were chosen with random but all with the painstaking care of a man who was seeking none but the best.

All people make scrap books. I do not mean with scissors and paste, and printed lines. We collect each day the things that are to be our inspiration and our guides in the days and the years to come.

We may collect the beauty of a sunset, or the slime beneath it; the thoughts that quicken life from a real book, or the things that drag it down from lines of trash. We may collect the poetry of friendship or the doggerels of the will and dislike.

If our ship went down without warning, as Elbert Hubbard's did when the drifting iceberg shattered the great Titanic, what kind of a scrap book would we leave behind?

DEVELOPMENT IS PLANNED FOR BIG LAKE SECTION

BIG LAKE, Texas, Feb. 23.—A million dollars will be spent by the California company in development work on the Marathon Fold during the current year according to the latest reports. This company it is understood is a subsidiary of the Standard of California and with a recent purchase now have leases along the Fold in Terrell, Reagan, Crockett and Mitchell counties. A large amount of the production in the latter county is controlled by them.

These recent purchases in this section consisted of 16 sections, 12 of which are located in Block 7 and are consisting of numbers 32, 33, 34, 35 and sections 20 to 27 inclusive. Sections 13 and 14 in Block 8 were purchased for a consideration of $750 an acre, this land being southwest from the producing territory of the Big Lake Oil company. A section was also bought in Block 11.

A number of wells will be drilled in the near future by this company, it is reported the first of which will be in Block 8. The Mid-Kansas and Texas companies are also very active in this field, they having checker-boarded both Reagan and Crockett counties. The geological staff of the Texas Interstate are now in the field working on what appears to be a large structure south of here.

Chief interest continues, however to be in the Shannon No. 1 well of the Crockett Drilling Syndicate, which is believed to be located on the apex of the Sheffield Terrace. Considerable delay in the completion of this well has been caused by water trouble it being necessary to pull the 8-inch casing. A leaky joint of pipe is thought to be causing the trouble.

In the proven territory the Big Lake Oil company has spudded in their No. 6 and are preparing to start drilling operations on the No. 7. These wells are located southwest of the discovery well. Derrick timbers for the 118 foot rotary derrick of the Wade Drilling company are now on the lease and work will be started immediately.

Should this heavy type rotary be successful in cutting the hard formations several more it is expected will be moved into this field to hasten the work. The rig will drill to 2950 feet and the well completed with cable tools.

As a result of the activity in this section number of supply houses are preparing to open stores here. A machine shop is also needed as tools are now being hauled to Eastland and Ranger for repairs.

The Chamber of Commerce will also issue a circular dealing with the leasing of university lands for the convenience of the operators. This information has been requested from the State Land department.

"THE STORE AHEAD"

In addition to these groups we have many of the more expensive models which we shall be pleased to show you.

BLAKE SMITH
responding, he stated that he admitted that he had been in the offices of these gentlemen on numerous occasions, as a director in their company, and that he had never discovered anything but the most honorable conduct in their affairs; that he trusted them implicitly and even when he was secretary of the board, he would often sign any statement requiring his signature, which Blake had passed on, even without reading it beforehand. He said that his presence in Mexia was due in a large way to the encouragement and conservatism of Blake Smith, referring in this to the earlier remarks by Mr. Berry.

It was left to Tracy McKenzie, however, to call to the attention of those present that Blake Smith had more to do with the discovery of the Mexia oil field than any other man in Mexia or elsewhere. He elicited this statement with a brief and interesting, haphazardly phrased recital of the early days of the gas field, the beginning of the oil field, and when Blake's, coming in, and nervous activity had played so prominent a role in discovery and development.

Phil Kuhn followed with a feeling statement as regard which men feel for another, when the bonds of friendship have been welded since boyhood days. He was a playmate of Blake Smith, long before the time spoken of by Mr. McKenzie. He also attested his value to the city in the cooperation extended to business men, and was glad to be a member of the party honoring him on his 42nd birthday.

George Petty concurred in all that Mr. McKenzie had stated, adding that he had known Blake when he was not a man of means and that he was the same genial, cheerful, plain, agreeable friend today as he was then. Sincere and not spurious.

Walter K. Boyd followed Mr. Petty, stating that he had to be mad before he could make a speech; that he was not mad now, but was feeling mighty good. He then called attention to the fact that Blake Smith does many things for the good of Mexia, which the town never hears about. As an example he cited the cooperation given thus daily to the News Publishing Company, because of which the company can publish the Mexia Daily News, a town builder. He also paid a tribute to Mrs. Smith.

Texis McTroy was called upon, as one of the new men of Mexia. He stated that he could say what he thought of Blake in very few words that he had found him to be an unusual type, a citizen and a friend of inestimable worth and one whom he was proud to have an opportunity to honor.

W. B. Keyrich called to mind the help that Blake had been to him, stating that it was through his services largely that he had won his first success in business in a larger way and that this came through his version of the letter which he had a facsimile in the old oil field, which Blake had obtained for him prior to the discovery of oil.

Dr. Gates was called upon to tell whether there was anything wrong with Blake. He bears a doctor's name, but he does not tell. He then told of some of the escapades of youth of his brother Blake, and agreed with everything else that had been said about him.

By this time, Sanford Smith was getting up to speak when the other, being the last one called upon, delayed no longer and told what the doctor did not tell. He then told of some of the escapades of youth of his brother Blake, and agreed with everything else that had been said about him.

Dr. George McCall, with more time to get ready to speak than the others, being the last one called upon, delayed no longer and told what the doctor did not tell. He then told of some of the escapades of youth of his brother Blake, and agreed with everything else that had been said about him.

ON THE WAY DOWN TOWN

Trousers Are Going Towards Armpits

By SLYBOOTS
While coming down Commerce this morning on my way to town I fell in with John Sweet, who while waxing remissive over the days before his oil lamp told me a yarn concerning the keys which I think good enough to occupy a few lines of print in this section.

One of the clubs of the city, he said, was put on a play in the interest of charity and had selected a company of Shapemakers from Dallas. The keys, who had a part in the play, a page or some such or the same order was supposed to enter the stage at a certain time and exclaim to the king that the crown had slipped.

At the time scheduled for his entry he strutt'd in, garbed in all the grand habiliments of the person he intended to play, was supposed to enter the play at the plaudits of admiring audience bowed gracefully to the king, saying as he did in a falsetto voice "Sire, the crown has slipped."

As he did so he slipped from one side to the other and then slipped right over the whole stage and down to the color of the audience, when this time the king said "Sire, the crown has slipped" and Frank Bolton, the manager of the club, could all be heard all over the house exclaiming "Good heavens, the crown has slipped!"

The man who has experienced difficulty in making his vest and trousers behave, i.e. who finds that every once in a while the waist of his trousers and the bottom of his vest part revealing an expanse of belt buckle and sometimes even his shirt, will welcome the high waisted trousers.

Belts have always been condemned by the medicos as leading to stomach trouble, bad indigestion and poor figures. Of course, with the high waisted trousers, the suspender is the only thing. Suspenders always have been scoffed at and maligned, but they are the best aid for keeping the trousers hanging straight. The suspender is now deservedly enjoying a day of affluence and they are blossoming out into color, too. It is amazing the numerous color combinations and patterns that you can find in a display of suspenders these days. The old "galaxy" is coming back with a "bang."

Costs $150,000 Quarter To Care For Unfortunates

AUSTIN, Texas Feb 23—Texas will spend approximately $150,000.00 to supply the eleemosynary institutions of the state with clothing, notions and dry goods for the three months beginning March 1, according to contracts recently let by the state board of control.

The piece of such article is about 10 per cent more than it was August 1, 1923, when the last contract was awarded.

Twelve firms were awarded the contracts. Eleven of them were Texas concerns and the twelfth a Kentucky company.

DALLAS, Texas Feb 22—Dr. W. H. Evans, imperial wizard of the Klan in Texas "to make the rounds," he said in an interview and not in connection with the suspension of V. A. Collins, local Klan official and gubernatorial candidate. "The Klan is not in politics except to fight against those who fight against the Klan," he said.

THE ANGEL GOD LOANED

(In Memory of my Little Nephew)

God loaned us an Angel for a little while,

In the form of a beautiful little child

Forgetful we were for we did not know

The Angel God loaned in a little while must go

So if God sends an Angel down to you

Always be thoughtful, tender and true,

For sad will be your heart if he takes him away,

And he may not send another along your way.

WHITE GIRL TO KISS NEGRO ACTOR IN SHOW PLANNED TO OPEN IN NEW YORK SOON

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Art stepped across the color line Friday and Mary Blair, white actress, consented to play the lead in Eugene O'Neil's forthcoming play opposite Paul Robson, full-blood negro.

Action of the piece calls for Miss Blair to kiss Robson, who is first her lover, then her husband as the drama of mixed marriage, "All God's Chillun Got Wings," unfolds.

A storm of criticism has been evoked by insistence of the producers, the Princeton players upon casting the negro for the leading male part. Several actresses refused to play opposite him, in view of the story which calls for the white girl heroine gradually losing her mind as she lives with her negro husband, until as the final curtain falls she abases herself and kisses his hand.

Miss Blair consented, but refused to say what her feelings on the matter were. She is a Northern girl. The management, commenting upon the interest, protest and, in some quarters, indignation, which the casting of the play has produced, said:

"Paul Robson, the negro actor, is a man of histrionic ability and a fine gentleman. We expect to open the play at our theatre shortly after March 10."

The story of the play is laid in New York in the section known as the "black and tan belt." Eight children—four white and four black—play together and Jim, the negro boy, and Ella, the white girl, are childhood sweethearts. Later she takes up with a prize fighter, then elopes with the negro lover of her youth and they go abroad.

It is after they return to New York to the "black and tan" neighborhood where they live with Jim's mother and sister, that Ella gradually goes insane, brooding on the race problem. At the end, Jim, who has an inferiority complex, as they say in Greenwich Village, fails to pass his bar examinations. Ella is so happy that she falls to her knees, kissing her black husband's hand.

GUSHERS LOOK GOOD BEFORE "PLAY BALL" IS SHOUTED; OLD MEN ARE SIGNING UP

By HEK JR.

I dropped around to see Gray Forrest, Saturday morning and found John Sanders, Rex Forrest and himself discussing the possibilities of a championship team for the Gushers this season. They all gave me instructions to tell the followers of the great national pastime that the pitching ace of the Gushers, and one of the leading twirlers of the T. A. last year had just put his John Henry on the little dotted line of the contract. Friday. To make it more clear and not to keep you all guessing we might as well say that Clarence Tiner will be on the roster of the Gushers for this season. They say that it was very amusing to hear him relating his experience in the Pacific Coast League and he is just tickled to death to know that he will wear Mexia uniform again this season. Quite a few of the last years men have sent in their signed contracts and will be back to help the Gushers win a pennant this season.

Among those who have signed are Lefty McCaw, Bob Crow, Spike Schieffer, Squibb Geppert, and Gustav Leedy. Mr. Forrest stated that Fawkes, the new manager, has sent in his signed contract and he also advises the directors of the club that he has signed for the Gushers a real man to hold down the initial sack, by the name of Joe Eaks. He states that Eaks should prove the best guardsman for initial bag in the entire league. Manager Fawkes also states that he has just about landed a real third snacker for the Gushers. It is beginning to look like Mexia will be in the running from the start.

Quite a number of rookies are under contract among whom is Otto Spenger, a cousin of the famous Silver Top Spoke. There are several players who have not sent in their signed contracts but it is not believed that all of them are hold-outs. Ludwick and Sanders, two of the Gushers' pitching staff of last year, have not signed on the dotted line as yet. Carl Hill, stocky little right hander from Coolidge has not signed as yet either. Butler, Bryan and Bechtol, three hard hitting and excellent fielding guardians of the outer gardens are also on the list with Hill, Ludwick and Sanders.

The club directors are very anxious that all of the baseball fans be present at the meeting to be held Monday night at the Elk's Club at exactly 7:30 o'clock. Plans for the coming season will be discussed and the prospects for the Gushers will be given a thorough investigation.

France Adopts New Program

By WEBB MILLER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

PARIS, Feb. 23.—The Chamber of Deputies, after an unprecedented session which lasted through the night, at 7 a. m. today adopted the Government financial program.

The vote was 354 to 218.

The chamber voted on more than 100 articles during the night. Dawn found many dozing in their chairs and attendants had to awaken them at the roll calls.

Despite exhaustion Premier Poincare kept his seat throughout the session and made a brief speech before the final vote.

There already are rumors of happy results from the work of the commission of experts examining Germany's capacity to pay reparations, the Premier said, adding, however, that France must be prepared to bear for certain time the effects of Germany's defaults.

The experts, Poincare believed, will end the possibility of defaults in the future.

"It is to cover that period of default, however, that I have asked the chamber to vote these new fiscal measures" (the Government financial program) Poincare said.

The program as adopted contains many important measures for bolstering French credit and defending the value of the franc, which slumped to nearly 25 to the dollar early this week. The last article of the project authorized issuance of seven billion francs in short term 1924 treasury bonds.

SCIENCE DEFEATING ...
WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Once a year Uncle Sam posts the returns from the relentlessly waged battle between Science and Disease and Death.

To his legions of physicians he says:

"You are winning here," or "You are losing there." And in the sectors where the fight is going in their favor, they press it more vigorously, confident of their tactics. Where it is going against them, they take counsel and seek new methods of attack.

Uncle Sam, through his Census Bureau, has just published the returns for the year, 1922. Battle lines are being reformed accordingly.

Science and medicine, his figures show, are slowly winning against tuberculosis, the dread "white plague," which, for so many years, took the heaviest toll of all diseases; against diseases of early infancy, and those which permanently impair little children sometimes, such as scarlet fever, whooping cough, and diphtheria; against typhoid fever, pulmonary septicemia, and in preventing death through certain accidental causes.

But, according to his returns, the battle is not going so well against other major diseases. The fight seems to be losing against diseases of the heart, influenza and pneumonia, nephritis and Bright's diseases, cancer, diabetes, syphilis and many forms of accidental death.

The death rate of the 37 states of the United States which comprise the death registration area of the nation, from which the Census Bureau's figures are drawn in 1922, was 11.8 per 100,000, slight increase over the low rate of 11.6 established in the preceding year. Actual deaths numbered 1,101,863 in 1922 against 1,032,009 in 1921.

To a heavy increase in the death rate from influenza and pneumonia, which jumped 50 per cent in 1922 over 1921, the bureau attributes the entire increase in the national death rate in 1922.

Yet the fugues for the nation as a whole are so encouraging as to cause medical officials of the government to regard the relatively poor showing against the major diseases, excluding tuberculosis, with equanimity.

Losses sustained against heart disease, nephritis and cancer, they say, in themselves, an indication of general progress in the battle. More people are living to the age at which they are liable to these diseases, they contend, and in great measure their increase indicates, not so much that the diseases are on the upgrade, but that science has prolonged many lives to years in which these diseases make progress. A quarter century ago the death rate was 30 per 100,000, now it is 11.8. So the battle continues. In recent years, the average life has been lengthened by it from 42 years to 53 years, according to the insurance companies who deal in death. Science will confine itself to further study of those recalcitrant ailments which now seem to take the crowning years of life, with the expectancy of raising the average human life well above the Biblical three score years and ten. The goal now set is 75 years. Uncle Sam will tabulate the progress toward it.

NEW RAILROAD CASE INTERESTS THIS SECTION

Glen Rose Banker Arrested In Murder Case

Evidence Heard By Texas Commission Overwhelming Favors Outlet To Pt. Arthur

By B. F. STOLLENWERCK

When it is explained that the records in the case of the Waco, Beaumont, Trinity & Sabine Railway case are very voluminous, and that they are developing a line of testimony that will likely consume ten days of the time of the Texas State Railroad Commission in hearing, it can be readily understood that the record is far too large to report on in any considerable detail, unless it were covered in a series of articles, in fact it has been decided to cover the matter in just such a series of three or four articles, this one being the first.

In the first place there is no development in even remote prospect that is of such far reaching importance to the civic and commercial development of Mexia, and it is therefore apparent that every citizen who has the interest of the community at heart should at least study the proposition to the extent of familiarizing him or her with the salient facts. In arriving at complete understanding it is necessary to go into detail, but every effort will be made to avoid tiresome recounting of "dry" facts that are not pertinent.

The Waco, Beaumont, Trinity & Sabine Railway has lines extending from Trinity to Colmesneil, Texas and from Weldon to Livingston, Texas. Get a map of Texas and locate these two lines. The first mentioned line was for years a part of the M. K. & T. system, but in the re-organization recently worked out by that system, was not included in the re-organization scheme, but was sold to Col. R. C. Duff and associates, and made a part of the W. B. T. & S.

The other line from Weldon to Livingston, via Trinity, was built as the Beaumont & Great Northern, was an independent line and was built with the avowed intention of reaching from Beaumont to Waco. The road was built from Livingston to Weldon, but during the financial stringency in the war period, money was so tight that further construction Northwest of Weldon was temporarily abandoned, and that point has remained the terminus for several years. Recently Col. R. C. Duff and associates purchased both these lines, which had passed into the control of the Katy, and merged them into the present system known as the Waco, Beaumont, Trinity & Sabine, and the purchase was made with the avowed intention of building from tide water at Port Arthur to Waco. This consolidation was a long and tedious process. It was first necessary that a bill be enacted by the Texas Legislature authorizing the purchase and consolidation, it had to have the approval of the Governor and the Texas Railroad Commission. Some months were consumed in the final consummation of this procedure, notwithstanding no very apparent opposition existed to the plan at that time.

The next step was to procure from the Interstate Commerce Commission (which body will be hereafter referred to in the articles as "ICC") permission to build the road, which is known as a "Certificate of Public Convenience and Necessity." That permission was obtained and the builders of the line began to work out immediate plans for the improvement of the existing lines and further extensions, as planned, when the Kansas City Southern appeared on the scene as protest against the permission to build into Port Arthur and it seems that legal procedure requires that the ICC reopen the case, which is the case now being heard at Austin. In this case the W. B. T. & S. is known as the Applicant and the Kansas City Southern is known as the Protestant, fighting the application of the W. B. T. & S. to build into Port Arthur.

The Texas Railway Commission is acting as Examiner for the ICC, and is hearing the case, ruling on the admissibility of evidence, etc., and the complete transcript of the case will be sent to the ICC in Washington, who will examine all the records in the case, and render a decision. This decision will be forthcoming at the convenience of the ICC. It may be thirty to ninety days and these cases have been known to take longer than six months.

The different phases of the case will be described under three heads, as follows: the next article will relate to the testimony as concerning Port Arthur as another port open to the commerce of Central and West Texas, the next as related to the probable development of that portion of Texas southeast of Mexia, and finally to Mexia and Waco.

The present article will be concluded with the statement that Col. R. C. Duff, the present head of the W. B. T. & S. is a practicing attorney of considerable means and influence who has been a resident of Beaumont for many years, and is now living in Houston. No man in Texas stands higher with his home people and the company he represents is exceedingly fortunate in having him at the head of its affairs. He bears the reputation in Beaumont of being a lawyer who would not defend a criminal whom he knew to be guilty, and whose reputation in other respects conforms to that. The testimony as developed at Autsun seems to the writer to be overwhelmingly in favor of the Applicant, and confidential information gathered there seemed exceeding encouraging to Mexia's chances to secure the line. It will naturally take a year or two to work out all the proposition, but it will be worth many thousands of dollars to Mexia in the end.

ROBINSON SAYS COOLIDGE NOW IS COURTING DISASTER

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Coolidge is courting political ruin by keeping Daugherty in the cabinet, Senator Robinson of Arkansas, democratic floor leader, said in a Senate speech. Robinson's speech was delivered following a White House announcement that Coolidge had endorsed Daugherty as the Coolidge delegate from the Ohio national republican convention. This followed a defense of Daugherty by John T. Adams, chairman of the republican national committee. Assa lants on Daugherty are conducted by "political blackguards and scandal mongers." It must be clear to everybody, Robinson said, that as long as the president retains as an intimate political adviser a man who has lost his confidence and the confidence of the people, it is calculated to work out the political ruin for the executive.

Impeachment proceedings against Daugherty was suggested by Senator Borah on the senate floor as the only way the investigation can go forward is by impeachment said Borah.

THREE MEN DIE WHEN BOILER EXPLODES

BARTLESVILLE, Okla., Feb. 23.—Three trainmen were killed at Hominy, near here, late yesterday when a Katy switch engine exploded while enroute to the repair shop at Osage. The boiler of the locomotive was hurled a hundred feet and a short stretch of track torn up. Cause of the explosion was unknown, according to railroad officials. They are:

W. H. FRENCH, engineer.
G. F. PHIPPS, fireman.
L. F. PARGON.

All were from Parsons, Kansas.

NEW COURSE FITS BACHELORS FOR MARRIAGE

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—"Men, take a second look at that woman you marry her," advises Carroll M. Gibney, educational director of Central Y. M. C. A. Brooklyn.

Gibney, announcing a course to prepare bachelors for marriage, says

DON'T:

Marry for sex attraction alone.

Fail to run your household on a budget system.

Expect your wife to conform to the "single standard" of morality if your own is double.

Put off marrying until you are earning $4,000 a year.

Pay more than 30 per cent of your income for rent in New York, or 20 per cent elsewhere.

The course will last six weeks and will give single men a "knowledge of the economic, physiological and psychological aspects of marriage, as well as training in care and education of children."

Forty-two Club Entertained

Friday afternoon Mrs. J. K. Hughes entertained the forty-two club with a delightful party at her home on South McKinney Street. George Washington's birthday was carried out in the color scheme, and the decorations were cherry blossoms and cherry fruit in green settings.

There were forty-nine guests present, and twelve tables of forty-two. The small cherry trees on each table and bud vases were given as door prizes. The favors were exquisite corsages of sweet peas and ferns.

A course consisting of nut salad, rolls, olives, pickles, and tea was served, followed by cream and cake, the latter carrying out the Washington motif, in the continental buff and blue colors. The cream was molded in the shape of Washington's bust, and was buff in color, while the cake was blue.

Benton Jones left Friday for Moran where he is interested in oil field development.

Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Wright of Denison are in the city visiting relatives.

Blake Smith is 42 years old. He has birthdays just like the rest of men. He was apprised Friday night that these were the facts in the case when about a score of his close friends gathered in his lovely home for one of the most unique affairs in which a citizen of any community, outside of political life, has ever figured and been honored.

They came from all walks of life and professions, old timers and new comers to express by their presence and word and hand clasp and smile the joy that was theirs in paying a worthy honor to plain, unpretentious, modest, unassuming, optimistic, generous hearted, honorable and successful business man, fellow citizen and true friend.

He began to "smell a mouse" about 6:00 o'clock when he received a telegram from his brother, Ben, at Dallas, expressing regret that he was unable to return in time for dinner and to enjoy the pleasures of the occasion.

He said that it was after dinner time then and he knew there must be something unusual or Ben would have never referred to a "Dinner" at supper time. E. L. Smith, however, passed it off lightly and sought to satisfy the nervous Blake.

Then the next thing he began to smell was such southern delectables as fried chicken, and all the accompanying accessories, the odor of which he declared made sweet music in his nostrils as soon as he arrived at his home, after a day assisting E. L.

Mrs. Smith had been informed beforehand of the plans of the business associates and a few close personal friends of Blake and the house was put in order, the feast prepared, and the success of the evening was due in no small degree to the direction and services of Mr. Smith's better half.

There was no mishap nor near mishap, whatever in the plans except that of Dr. Oates, which he claimed full responsibility for when he tried to rush things up a couple of days and have Blake's birthday on the twentieth instead of the twenty-second of Feb.

His admittance into the Rush street home Friday night met no obstacle.

The handsomely appointed home beamed a welcome to the guests, every room of which was thrown open to them and which they explored freely throughout the evening.

At 7:30 the guests entered the dining room, where two decorated tables were soon lined with hungry appetites.

Blake, as honoree of the occasion and host combined, was seated at the head of the table. On his right was the ever present E. L.

WALSH SEARCHES FOR FACTS IN SCANDAL

By PAUL R. MALLON

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—"Get facts that will make legal cases for prosecution."

This is the purpose of Senator Walsh, leading crusader in the naval oil reserve investigation as he completes today his program for next week's probings of the Teapot Dome committee.

Walsh, who has returned to Washington after a week's absence to study the scope of the inquiry, is bent upon getting the investigation out of the realm of gossip and fancy and return it once more into channels that will dig at the fundamentals of the scandal.

He began to "smell a mouse" about 6:00 o'clock when he received a telegram from his brother, Ben, at Dallas, expressing regret that he was unable to return in time for dinner and to enjoy the pleasures of the occasion.

Watson's Death Leads To The Arrest Of Seven

GLEN ROSE, Texas, Feb. 23.—

J. A. Milam, president of the First National Bank, has been jailed in connection with the murder of Richard Watson. Milam is the seventh man to be charged in connection with the murder.

Watson, who was the state's chief witness in a number of cases against bootleggers, was shot down near the city square Thursday night.

Twenty bootleggers whom authorities suspected in connection with the killing were arrested. Of this number, seven formally charged with the murder.

They are:

Dr. W. B. Pruitt, Murray West, Willis West, Senley West, brothers and Charles Moss and Grady Moss, brothers and J. A. Milam.

BLACK CATS WIN ONE OUT OF TWO FROM MARLIN

By NOODLES

The protégés of Ernest H. Pojet, high school mentor, were out for revenge Friday afternoon and night against the Marlin Hi Cagers and they threw a fit into the Marlin aggregation during the first quarter of the afternoon by running up a score of 14 to 2 and for the first half the score stood 18 to 12. But during the second half their defense became weak and the Marlin aggregation won the first game by the score of 27 to 23.

The second game was one of the best games ever seen on the High School court and the Marlin team never had a look in the bucket except for a short time during the first half. The first half ended with the score standing 20 to 9 in favor of the Black Cats.

BANNERS OF DESTINY

When a group of school children marched down Commerce Street Thursday morning with their placards announcing the things that they stood for, we suddenly had a strange vision of that same red-blooded army in the years ahead, marching on with their placards still raised demanding as the citizens of Mexia, the health, the higher ideals, the patriotism that they had marched for on that cold February morning so long ago.

But will they carry the same placards, and will their dreams and hopes still be the same or will they be smirched and lowered by the years that have slipped in between? Will they have fallen out of the ranks, and drifted along the sidewalks, content with less than the best, and counting costs more than the results that wait for them at the end?

In a magnificent building on Red River Street, in a building on McKinney Street, and in another on Sumpner Street the future of this city is being molded. The lessons of leadership, the lessons of disciplineship, the lessons of citizenship, are being taught. The destiny of Mexia is in their hands, and the banners they are taught to bear now will be the banners that will wave over our city when they have come into full leadership.

These banners are not only being made in the schoolroom but there are others who are assisting in the task. The great printers who are designing and lettering them are the teachers, the parents, and all other beings with whom they come in contact. Some of the plans will come from books left by great men, others will come from the trash that these young citizens pick up and read with zest, and most of them will come from the life that they come in direct contact with, and conditions as they are presented to them, by actual surroundings. Burbank has said, "If we paid no more attention to our plants than we have to our children, we would now be living in a jungle of weeds."

BLAKE SMITH

D. Oates, following which the company present made advances probably unequalled since the historical charge of the Light Brigade.

When the last of the many courses had been served, Garland Adair arose and told Mr. Smith that the moment now had arrived when he should be told just what a great man he was.

He explained the purpose of the assembly as follows:

E. L. Smith was then called upon to tell whether he was "the carpenter or the carpenter's assistant."

The reference being to the war time story of the man who unable to find employment elsewhere, took the advise of a friend and went to the ship yards and got him a job as a carpenter, which he was not. He got a board and hammer and walked about the premises. In short while he was joined by another man, who didn't have anything in his hand but who shadowed him closely all the first day. The next morning, this was repeated until the "carpenter" growing more uneasy all the time, stopped the fellow in a dark passage and said, "Look here, I want you to tell me what you mean by following me around this way?"

"Why don't you know who I am?" asked the second party, to which the first speaker replied, "No!" "Why, I'm your assistant" came the quick reply.

E. L. was unable to state just who was the carpenter in their relations. He paid a high tribute to his associate in the E. L. Smith Oil Company and inseparable companion and friend. During the many years of dealings to gether, E. L. stated that there had not been an instance in which they "locked horns" but that their dealings together had always been happy and he was glad to say, of the most honorable kind. He joined in the general pleasure of being present in honor of Blake and wished for him many more birthdays and pleasures.

David Murphy was next called upon as "another assistant of Blake."

He stated that he had known Blake practically all of his life and his parents before him, at the same time paying a high tribute to his ancestry. "I rejoice in the success of Blake Smith just as much as I would at my own success" he said, emphasizing this remark by stating that he meant that in all earnestness. He was referred to as the type of man whom success does not ruin, a man, however successful in financial affairs, always had time to check up on the things that money cannot buy and nourish them with plenty of the milk of human kindness.

Following these remarks, others were called upon at Random until every one of the seventeen who surrounded the table had spoken from sincere hearts of their love for this splendid type of citizen, of the pride that was theirs in having been closely associated with him in a business and friendly personal way, and quite a number confessed that all they have in the way of financial success was due to Blake Smith. Ringing through the talks was an informal sincerity which spoke more than volumes, stressing the simplicity, generosity and optimism of the man honored.

J. K. Hughes stated that he had known Blake Smith ever since he had come to Mexia, that it was a pleasure to him to be a fellow citizen with him, to work with him for Mexia, and to watch him prosper in business and join in the expressions of regard and love offered by others who had already spoken his sentiments.

A. H. Berry, in speaking of Mr. Smith, stated that Blake had contributed most helpfully in the organization of the company with which he was associated and that he knew of no one whom he would go to quicker when worried or in distress than to Blake Smith. He called attention to his modesty in all his dealings, to his optimism, to his unselfish generosity, when a man needs a friend and when citizens are wanted in a common cause.

J. Desenberg, was called upon, as one of the citizens whom Mr. Smith had agreed to let have some of the wealth of the community and who had known him much longer than the most of those gathered. In responding, he stated that Blake Smith was a gentleman of the highest type and a man whom Mexia was proud to call all her own.

Weaver Barnett was introduced as a man who had often been caught in the office with Blake and E. L. Smith and who might be able to tell something unusual, if he only would. Continued on Page 8

Business Girls of Carroll Club Find Substitute for Palm Beach In Own New York Swimming Pool

THE Florida east coast may have its attractions for society misses and matrons when the snow flurries in the North, but the business and professional young women of the Carroll Club of New York, whose work keeps them at their desks, have found that their swimming pool affords them an excellent substitute for the beaches of the South.

The Carroll Club was founded several years ago by Mrs. Nicholas F. Brady, prominent New York society leader, for business girls whose limited incomes denied them the opportunity of joining one of the expensive women's social clubs of the city. In dedicating the club to the memory of her mother, Mrs. Mary Carroll Garvan, Mrs. Brady provided for certain definite cultural and educational aims in the charter of the Carroll Club, as well as for the usual social and recreative advantages.

Jack Womack who has been in the Baptist Sanitarium at Fort Worth for the past several weeks, has returned to his home and the News is glad to report that he is much better. Mr. Womack is one of our most valuable citizens and when he is out of the city, he is always missed by his many friends.

Jesse McLendon who has been con-

The growth of the club has been steady and its popularity is attested by an active membership of more than 1500 enthusiastic girls in the field of social and educational development among New York's feminine working classes, the Carroll Club has achieved the distinction of being the pioneer.

Housed in the building formerly occupied by New York's famous Colony Club, once the center of the social whirlpool, the Carroll Club is one of the few remaining monuments to the craft of Stanford White, the architect to whom New York owes the Pennsylvania Terminal and the Public Library. It is pure Colonial in style and looks oddly out of place in the midst of a seething commercial neighborhood, hemmed in by towering mercantile structures.

To the girls of the Carroll Club, however, this only enhances its attraction. They troop in every afternoon and evening, tired mentally and physically after strenuous hours in their down town offices, to enjoy the quiet of the lounge or reading room, the soothing effect of the swimming pool, the excitement of basketball or gymnasium, or the diversion of mah-jong and bridge.

The swimming pool is one of the most popular of the club's attractions. Surrounded with tall French mirrors and brimming with clear, almost sparkling, blue water from the Croton lakes, it is considered one of New York's most beautiful pools. The Carroll girls take to it like ducks and as an indication of their keenness for water they are rapidly developing an excellent swimming team.

In other fields formerly occupied exclusively by the opposite sex, the Carroll girls are showing aptitude and ability. They have already produced one of the best feminine basketball teams in New York, they have a number of stellar performers in handball, tennis, squash and golf, a first rate hockey team and a crack indoor baseball team.

Jack Kearns his manager announced here while on a visit to the capital, Kearns will meet Tex Rickard Monday when he expects to get some definite understanding on the new matches, he said.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—School children should be given a course in puzzle solving, members of the national puzzlers league decided at a meeting here. They contend it would aid in straight thinking. The league spent most of its time at its 80th semi-annual convention in deciphering ciphers left by Francis Bacon.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Wall street reports betting odds even on chances of Wm. G. McAdoo and Governor Al Smith receiving the Democratic presidential nomination.

SAN DIAGO, Calif., Feb. 23.—Race fans saw one of the most unique races in local turf history when the first Old Nag event was held. Twenty-one decrepit horses, ranging in age from nine years up, tottered to the barrier for a day of youthful glory before thousands of spectators. While the elderly equines capered about, a band played "Old Gray Mare" and "There'll be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight." Jockeys, some of them tipping at 200 pounds rode in the race.

DALLAS, Texas, Feb. 23.—Local contracting firms have been awarded the task of erecting a $350,000 hotel in Corsicana. Work will start early in March. The hotel will have five stories and a basement and will be put up on a lot 100x100 feet. One of the features of the new hotel will be bachelor apartments on the second floor.

DALLAS, Texas, Feb. 23.—More than 100 delegates from all parts of the state are expected to attend the first conclave of the newly created Texas province of the Alpha Tau Omega college fraternity to be held here on February 29 and March 1. Many prominent Texans, alumni of the organization, have been invited to attend the meeting.

DALLAS, Texas, Feb. 23.—Little two year old Pearl Corbett saw a jar of coal oil on the floor at her parents' home and decided she was thirsty. After she had drunk a quantity of the kerosene, her mother discovered Pearl's beverage and called a doctor. Use of stomach pump soon had the little tot back to normal.

Jere H. Cason returned Saturday morning from Austin where he had been attending a meeting of delegates from the different Lions Clubs in this district, presided over by Colonel Louis C. Perry, district Governor of the Lions International. Mr. Cason reports that the meeting was entered into with lots of vim, vigor and vitality and that the outlook for the organization seems brighter than ever.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Smith returned Saturday morning from Dallas where they had been since Tuesday. Mr. Thomas then spoke for more than one hour and delivered a splendid address on "George Washington, The Mason." He told how Washington had gathered around him members of this great fraternity that takes the Holy Bible as its rule and guide, and laid the foundation for the greatest

Notwithstanding the threatening weather, sickness in the city and some other functions, the First Methodist church was comfortably filled Friday night by members of the Masonic fraternity and their families and friends to witness the Educational and Patriotic program arranged by Springfield Lodge No. 74, A. F. and A. M., in celebration of Washington's birthday.

Hon. Mike Thomas of Dallas, past grand master of the Texas Grand Lodge, past officer in all Scottish Rite bodies, and who says he has taken all degrees conferred in Masonry, including Buckingham, was the honor guest and the principal speaker of the evening. He was brought over from Waco in the afternoon and entertained by the committee appointed for the purpose at an informal banquet at the Majestic cafe. This committee was composed of J. D. Arrington, Frank Bolton, J. F. Denning, Ben F. Stollenwerck, Geo. M. Tidwell, M. B. Webb and N. P. Houx.

At 8 o'clock as Mrs. Roy Akin commenced to play the Doxology on the new pipe organ, the Eastern Star, led by the efficient worthy matron, Mrs. Oscar Denning, entered and took seats that had been reserved for them.

Rev. W. B. Andrews offered the invocation, and Frank Bolton acted for the worshipful master, Colon S. Phillips, who was sick, and explained the objects of the meeting.

Rev. Andrews delivered a short and splendid address on "Equality and Enforcement of Law," after which the members of the Eastern Star led in singing "My Country, 'Tis of Thee."

Mr. Thomas then spoke for more than one hour and delivered a splendid address on "George Washington, The Mason." He told how Washington had gathered around him members of this great fraternity that takes the Holy Bible as its rule and guide, and laid the foundation for the greatest nation under the fairest government ever known. His splendid address was given, the closest attention throughout and was freely complimented.

After another song "God Be With You," led by the Eastern Star, Rev. Andrews pronounced the benediction, and there was an informal reception for Mr. Thomas, many taking advantage of the opportunity to meet this distinguished Mason and splendid Christian gentleman.

B. W. Collier Has Birthday Dinner With Few Friends

Friday, February 22nd was Mr. B. W. Collier's 77th birthday, and he celebrated the event by having a few of his friends come and take dinner with him. His daughter, Mrs. J. M. Tidwell, prepared the feast at her home on South McKinney street, and the invited guests who availed themselves of the invitation were Messers Warren Steele, John Melton, D. A. Waler, J. P. Yeldell, A. J. Cox and N. P. Houx, who enjoyed the feast and the company to the limit.

Mrs. Tidwell was assisted in the affair by her husband, Minor, who brought the guests to their home in his car, and by her daughter, Miss Louise, in serving the dinner, which was all that any one could wish.

There were two big turkeys—one to decorate the table with and one carved to eat, and it was thought at one time that the decoration would have to be cut into, when John Melton announced that he had not eaten anything for two days, preparing for this happy event, but the numerous trimmings and accessories saved the day and all had a sufficiency without disturbing the other bird.

Mr. Collier was the recipient of many congratulations and good wishes for many more birthdays, and Mr. and Mrs. Tidwell were declared to be past masters as hosts.

Better Chances For Pitchers In 1924

By HENRY L. FARRELL

(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Better pitching and a corresponding decrease in mile and two-mile hitting may result from the decision of the major league executives to be more thrifty in the use of balls next season.

Since the rule was passed against any and all kinds of tampering with the ball, the umpires had become almost fanatical in keeping in play a spotless ball, which, in the strictest interpretation of the rules, could mean nothing but a new ball.

After a ball had been slightly turfs-tained or roughed up a little by a smack against the wire or the stands, it was thrown out of play and a new ball tossed to the pitcher. Batters could protest against a ball and invariably it would be thrown out, even if there was a question about it.

This resulted not only in a very material increase of expense in providing balls, but it imposed a handicap upon all the pitchers, as every one who has handled a baseball knows it is much used balls.

U. S. OFFICIALS IN BERLIN FEAR SMASH

BERLIN, Feb. 22 (United Press)—American officials here believe that Germany's temporary return to "normalcy" is dangerously liable to be followed by a terrible smash.

Some of these authorities on whom the American government relies for its information as to German conditions foresee that an era of starvation—even in the agricultural communities—can ensue. Their view is very pessimistic. They fear that unless an earlier reparation settlement comes, conditions similar to the famine in the Wolga district will arise within the German farming provinces.

Farmers, they fear, may plant less for their next harvest than they have hitherto done. Such a course would naturally bring with it a famine in the cities, too, as Germany never has been able to produce enough grains and meats for her populace.

At the moment, Germany's visible supply of meats and grains is surprisingly large. The food stores are crammed to overflowing with the plenty of the land.

But, it is explained, this plentitude is due to a dumping process on the part of the big land owners. For a time they held back their wares, as they did not care to accept falling per marks.

The Market Flooded.

With the introduction of the rentenmark they flooded the markets with their goods. But they killed too much cattle, it was claimed.

This pouring of cattle and grain on the city market is destined—still in the opinion of American officials—to lead and recall that Poincare ditched these recommendations.

They admit there is perhaps more leniency in France now than there was then. Then fall of the franc has caused a certain uneasiness in France. But they estimate that the gulf between French finances and French politics is too great to permit of a real settlement of the reparations problem now.

Veteran pitchers, or those with several years' big league experience, were better able to meet the handicap than young pitchers coming up from minor leagues, where the umpires were not so opposed to the keeping in play of a used ball.

There seems to be little doubt among the players that the ball is more lively than it used to be and, of course, this contributed toward the increase in long hitting, but the lively ball could not have been entirely responsible for the general let down of pitching.

American League umpires were ordered by Ban Johnson late last season to keep the balls in play as long as possible, and it is understood that the National League umpires will be instructed to do the same next season.

There are no figures to show what effect Johnson's orders had on hitting last season, but the pitchers agree that they were able to pitch better with to a serious collapse probably only a few months hence. The reason for this excessive slaughter of cattle lies in the fact that the landlords were compelled to gather hastily money for new taxes.

It is foreseen, however, that the agrarians will reach a point where they say that there is no profit for themselves, but that instead their substance is eaten up by too heavy tax burdens.

If they reach this point, it is then figured that they will adopt the scheme of the Russian peasants, namely, the planting of less acreage and the slaughter of fewer cattle. The results of such a policy would clearly be catastrophic.

The rentenmark is now thoroughly stable. The nation has confidence in it. But those who delve beneath the surface realize that it is only a transitional currency and that a stable gold money must be introduced. Moreover, an excess of exports over imports and an excess of state income over outgo must be achieved if actual stability of currency and conditions is to be had in mid-Europe.

Reparations Failure?
American officials have confided to callers their pessimism over the prospects of a satisfactory reparation solution. Both the American and German authorities anticipate that General Dawes and his assistants will make drastic recommendations which, if adopted by France, would lead to a healing of the German economic situation.

But these same officials make little secret of their fears that Poincare will sabotage the findings. They look back upon the work of the Wirth experts

Youthful Editor Had The Nerve And 'Comes Back'

BONHAM, Texas, Feb. 23.—The "Pathé Sun" has again made its appearance on the streets of Bonham after a hard fight against adverse circumstances by Joe Lair, its 13-year-old publisher.

Lair, who holds every position from editor to reporter on the paper, started the publication in January, 1923. But so many things came up to occupy his time that after a few flourishing months he was forced to suspend publication.

Now, with prospects bright on every hand, Joe has again put his paper into circulation. It is issued weekly and consists of eight pages, four columns to the page. It is neatly written in colored pencils and well edited. The editorial policy is:

EARLY SPRING

There is a faint green veil high in the tops of elm trees, and the yellow daffodils have opened gold beneath my window ledge,

And there is green upon a distant hill.

A thrill runs shivering through the damp, cold earth. Dead smells are gone, the air is clean and sweet.

Some hand has drifted violets thru the leaves,

And sprinkled daisies at my eager feet.

—Sadi Kirgan.

There is no objection to other people's thinking what they like—just so they refrain from thinking out loud.

How much louder it sounds when some one else slams the door!

And the sweetness of some women reminds us of sugar-coated pills.

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Washington, Feb. 22.—Senator LaFollette took command of the senate in an effort to oust Attorney General Daugherty from the cabinet. Belief has grown in administration circles that if Coolidge does not yield this week and dismiss Daugherty, that the president will stand by the attorney general until he has a full hearing before the Senate committee.

Washington, Feb. 22.—John T. Adams, chairman of the republican national committee, came to the defense of Daugherty when he said he would issue a statement tonight on behalf of the committee. "It is absurd to talk of dismissing a man who has not had a full hearing and an opportunity to defend himself."

The man who wears the best clothes may have the most creditors.

"RESULTS"

Results are what count in life, but there are no results without causes. When we see a man at thirty-five who is a success, owning his own home and conducting a prosperous business, we can rest assured that these conditions are the results of definite causes.

One of the chief causes of success in life is ability to save money. If you have that ability your chances for success are multiplied a hundred times.

ARBOR DAY PROGRAM

A very unique program was given by the Seniors for the Juniors Thursday in keeping with Arbor Day. The Seniors planted a tree, handing the spade with the Senior colors on it to the Juniors to keep and protect the tree with. Next year this class of Juniors as Seniors will hand the spade down to the class below them, thus establishing a custom to be long remembered in old Mexia High School.

Robert Storey, president of the Senior Class made a short talk telling the purpose of the tree and the reason for planting it. This talk was followed by several humorous burials of different troublesome Senior subjects. Miriam Bass buried a tiny pony, significant to Latin students; Marguerite Franks, a test tube remembered by all Chemistry students; Machon Forrest, an English classic; Velma Wallace a compass, known to all Math students; J. L. Galtin an outside reading report for History, something we are all familiar with; Herman Adams a "Detention Card," familiar to almost every student in M. H. S.

Aileen Tittle then presented the Senior spade and Marvin Bennett, president of the Junior Class accepted the spade. A short talk by Mr. Andrews followed, and then Mr. Puckett addressed the students in his pleasing and instructive manner. The program ended with the singing of the school song and of "America."

Banker Delivers Address To Class At High School

CAREFUL TRAINING IN CITIZENSHIP AND BETTER ENGLISH DEMONSTRATED IN IMPRESSIVE SUMPTER PARADE

The pupils of the Sumpter Street boy alone dressed in an old tattered School, demonstrating what months overcoat, and leaning on a walking stick, "I ain't" "He was Bad English" and bore many small cards with incorrect words on them. Behind him have done for them, gave one of the most splendid exhibitions Mexia has seen. Thursday morning, when with flying colors they marched six hundred strong down Commerce street, not only to show Mexia what Sumpter Street School stands for but what the future citizens of Mexia are going to demand.

Despite the fact that the morning was gray and cold, there was an untouched enthusiasm about the moving line of young Americans as they swung down the street bearing their posters with their slogans, "Down With Bad English," "A Yell and a Cheer, Better English this Year," "We are on the March for Better English," "To Read Good Books we Must Try, and Better English is Our Cry," "Get the Dictionary Habit." The younger grades carried clever little picture posters made by themselves illustrating the correct use of idioms. One little class displayed the tree of errors, a tree bearing "I seen," "I ain't," "I done," and other errors in its branches, with a child with an axe raised to cut the tree down.

The parade left Sumpter Street at ten o'clock. It was led by the Chief of Police, wearing a white satin badge with "Sumpter," on it, and riding a horse draped with the national colors. Following him was a car bearing on the back flags and a poster reading, "Sumpter Street School Stands for Patriotism, Health, Better Speech." In the car was Mrs. White, President of the Sumpter Street School Parent-Teachers Association and Mr. Puckett, City Superintendent of the Mexia Public Schools. Each wore a white satin badge.

Following the car came a child dressed as Uncle Sam, accompanied by a Red Cross nurse, representing the Good Health that Sumpter Street stands for. They were followed by two boys bearing the dictionary, decorated in red, white and blue. The grades of the school then came in order, the little primary class leading. At the back of the line, barred from the regular line by a poster which read, "No Admittance to Sumpter Street School" came twelve boys representing Carelessness, Ignorance, Slang, and other undesirable qualities. Some feet behind this group came a

Friday afternoon a colored boy, age about 16, was thrown from the running board of a car, said to be traveling at a high rate of speed on the Mexia-Tehuacana road, and seriously if not fatally injured. It is not known whether or not the negro is dead, but from reports of eye witnesses who were driving a car directly behind the one in which the boy was riding, he seemed to be dying when they left him. They reported that the car on which he was riding was, as best they could remember, a Dodge roadster, practically new, and that two men, evidently intoxicated, were in it. The car did not stop, they said, after the boy was thrown off. Officers are working on the case now.

REV. G. T. REAVES ADDRESSES HIGH SCHOOL BODY THURSDAY

Thursday, February 21st, Rev.

Reaves of the First Christian church held the devotional exercises at the Mexia High School and later gave an address in honor of our first president, George Washington.

Rev. Reaves said that the qualities that gave Washington his commanding position were courage, determination and faith in himself, others and God. Washington stands preeminent in these virtues just as his monument stands with its head in the clouds at our National Capital. America has but one great shrine, the unpretentious tomb at Mount Vernon. Rev. Reaves complimented the honor students and urged them to continue to have faith in themselves and the courage of their convictions. In our early history Washington was the first national hero. Since that time when occasion demands it, God has always provided us leaders greater than the crisis. In our own day, when we needed a leader Woodrow Wilson was at hand.

Rev. Reaves' address was thoroughly enjoyed by faculty and student body and his return is anticipated with pleasure.

SCRAPBOOKS

By SADI KIRGAN

When Elbert Hubbard went down on the Titanic he left behind a collection of poems and various clippings in a scrap book. He had not contemplated that they would ever be printed. He was making instead, a collection of the best that many men and women had said, for his own reading, the thoughts and ideas that he needed to steady him as he went about his tremendous work.

After the loss of the great journalist the scrap book was printed. It presents a marvelous arrangement of bits of literature from lits of every day verses of contemporary writers, to the most exalted moments of the greatest classical genius. None of

BIG LAKE, Texas, Feb. 23.—A million dollars will be spent by the California company in development work on the Marathon Fold during the current year according to the latest reports. This company it is understood is a subsidiary of the Standard of California and with a recent purchase now have leases along the Fold in Terrell, Reagan, Crockett and Mitchell counties. A large amount of the production in the latter county is controlled by them.

These recent purchases in this section consisted of 16 sections, 12 of which are located in Block 7 and 4 consisting of numbers 32, 33, 34, 35 and sections 20 to 27 inclusive. Sections 13 and 14 in Block 8 were purchased for a consideration of $7.50 an acre, this land being southwest from the producing territory of the Big Lake Oil company. A section was also bought in Block 11.

A number of wells will be drilled in the near future by this company, it is reported the first of which will be in Block 8. The Mid-Kansas and Texas companies are also very active in this field they having checker-boarded both Reagan and Crockett counties. The geological staff of the Texas interests are now in the field working on what appears to be a large structure south of here.

Chief interest continues however to be in the Shannon No. 1 well of the Crockett Drilling Syndicate, which is believed to be located on the apex of the Sheffield Terrace. Considerable delay in the completion of this well has been caused by water trouble it being necessary to pull the 8-inch casing. A leaky joint of pipe is thought to be causing the trouble.

All people make scrap books. I do not mean with scissors and paste, and printed lines. We collect each day the things that are to be our inspiration and our guides in the days and the years to come.

We may collect the beauty of a sunset, or the slime beneath it; the thoughts that quicken life from a real book, or the things that drag it down from lines of trash. We may collect the poetry of friendship or the "doggerels" of the will and dislike.

In the proven territory the Big Lake Oil company has spudded in their No. 6 and are preparing to start drilling operations on the No. 7. These wells are located southwest of the discovery well. Derrick timbers for the 116 foot rotary derrick of the Wade Drilling company are now on the lease and work will be started immediately.

Should this heavy type rotary be successful in cutting the hard formations several more it is expected will be moved into this field to hasten the work. The rig will drill to 2950 feet and the well completed with cable tools.

As a result of the activity in this section a number of supply houses are preparing to open stores here. A machine shop is also needed as tools are now being hauled to Eastland and Ranger for repairs.

The Chamber of Commerce will also issue a circular dealing with the leasing of university lands for the convenience of the operators. This information has been requested from the State Land department.

Hats Blocked and Suits Pressed In Ten Minutes

We take great pleasure in announcing an entirely different, greatly simplified combination Hat Renovating and Blocking Machine. This machine is the result of two year's of experimenting by a man who has been in the hat renovating and blocking business all his life.

Here is the one and only machine which completely blocks and flanges every kind of hat—men's, women's or children's—without the aid of irons or shackles, and that it is guaranteed by the largest company of its kind in the world.

Straw hats, panama hats, all kinds of men's and women's felt and velour hats—every kind of hat made can be completely cleaned, reblocked, renovated and made to look exactly like new. Remember that this machine, because of its exclusive patented features, thoroughly dries out the hat, sterilizes it and eliminates entirely all odor. The finest white felt or panama hat can be cleaned on the Hoffman without the slightest chance of any discoloration.

All next week we will have with us an expert from the factory who will block the FIRST FIVE hats received each day free of charge. We will at all times have an experienced man in charge of this machine which will insure you the very best of service.

And we will do cleaning and pressing of suits the same as ever.

responding, he stated that he admitted that he had been in the offices of these gentlemen on numerous occasions, as a director in their company, and that he had never discovered anything but the most honorable conduct in their affairs; that he trusted them implicitly and even when he was secretary of the board, he would often sign any statement requiring his signature, which Blake had passed on, even without reading it beforehand. He said that his presence in Mexia was due in a large way to the encouragement and co-operation of Blake Smith, referring in this to the earlier remarks by Mr. Berry.

It was left to Tracy McKenzie, however, to call to the attention of those present that Blake Smith had more to do with the discovery of the Mexia oil field than any other man in Mexia or elsewhere. He clinched this statement with a brief and interesting, happily phrased recital of the early days of the gas field, the beginning of the oil field, and when Blake's optimism and nervous activity had played so prominent a role in discovery and development.

Phil Kanner followed with a feeling statement of regard which men feel for another, when the bonds of friendship have been welded since boyhood days. He was a playmate of Blake Smith, long before the time spoken of by Mr. McKenzie. He also attested his value to the city in the co-operation extended to business men, and was glad to be a member of the party honoring him on his 42nd birthday.

George Petty concurred in all that Mr. McKenzie had stated, adding that he had known Blake when he was not a man of means and that he was the same genial, cheerful, plain, agreeable friend today as he was then. Success had not spoiled him.

Walter K. Boyd followed Mr. Petty, stating that he had to be mad before he could make a speech; that he was not mad now, but was feeling mighty good. He then called attention to the fact that Blake Smith does many things for the good of Mexia, which the town never hears about. As an example, he cited the co-operation given financially to the News Publishing Company, because of which the company could publish the Mexia Daily News—a town builder. He also paid a tribute to Mrs. Smith.

Tevis Merton was called upon, as one of the new men of Mexia. He stated that he could say what he thought of Blake in a very few words; that he had found him to be an unusual type, a citizen and a friend of inestimable worth and one whom he was proud to have an opportunity to honor.

W. B. Kendrick called to mind the help that Blake had been to him, stating that it was through his services largely that he had won his first success in business in a larger way; and that this came through his ownership of the lease which has been a factor in the oil field, which Blake had induced him to buy, prior to the discovery of oil.

Dr. Oates was called upon to tell whether there was anything wrong with Blake, he being a doctor ought to know. He joined the others in the high praises extended and shared in their pleasure at being present.

By this time, Sandford Smith was getting uneasy for fear that he would not be called upon and told what the doctor did not tell. He then told of some of the escapades of youth of his brother Blake, and agreed with everything else that had been said about him.

Dr. Lennie Metcalf, with more time to get ready to speak than the others, being the last one called upon, dispelled the impression that he delivered a very splendid talk, stating that he was not only a neighbor to Blake but in this by marriage and that he knew him, he thought, mighty well. He concurred in everything said and went even further, if such a thing was possible.

Blake was then presented with a

Central Presbyterian Ladies Enjoy Study of Korea Missions

A most enjoyable and inspirational program was that held by the ladies of the Central Presbyterian church last Monday, at the church, when Mrs. Allen Hatch conducted the study of Korea—one of the most interesting of mission fields.

Mrs. Victor K. Aubrey presented an address on "The Awakening of Chosen," followed by a discussion of Schools and Hospitals in Korea.

Mrs. W. W. Wallace presented a paper on the Oriental Five Note Scale, in which it was brought to the attention of those present that oriental music was monotonous, on account of the five notes only used and that more hymn books were needed. Mrs. Haston and Mrs. Wallace presented a duet in their lovely way, followed by a poem given by Mrs. R. E. Hickman on "If, for Missionaries."

The next number was a "Joyful Offering" by Mrs. Haston.

Mrs. Warren Dale gave editorial notes from the Foreign Missionary movement.

A special missionary offering concluded the program.

The next meeting will be the regular social gathering of the society with Mrs. Tom Babb and Mrs. R. F. Babb as hostesses at the home of Mrs. Babb on North McKinney St.

handsome smoking set, harmonizing with the lovely appointments of his home, which was given by his guests and friends, not because of its worth in money, but because it was a token and tribute of sincerity in what had been spoken.

Since everyone present, by this time, had had a word to say, Mr. Smith then arose and with his usual modesty disclaimed any right to what had just been spoken. He said he was sure that they had just been talking, like he and Mr. Hughes, J. Desenberry and others talked recently before the American Legion when they pledged their financial help in building the War Memorial. He called attention to the silence that prevailed on that occasion when Mr. Shulz suggested that the checks be turned in then and there. Nevertheless, he stated that he was very grateful and hoped that part of what had been said was really true. He talked several minutes, reviewing many of the experiences called up in the talk made, stating that the others present and many besides that were responsible for the discovery of the Mexia oil field. He called attention to the fact that 100 citizens joined in the company which drilled the gas wells in the name of the Mexia Gas Company.

Following his remarks, which ended with a tribute to J. K. Hughes, Mr. Hughes spoke again and several others, it being determined to make two speeches or more the same evening, when the Radio began to work and the guests left the table.

At ten o'clock the Ft. Worth Star-Telegram broadcasted the story of the banquet in honor of Mr. Smith, telling about many who were present, and a little later telephone calls came in telling of folks who had heard the broadcasted report and how glad they were for Mr. Smith.

He stated that there were many citizens of Mexia whom he would have been glad to have seen present, and whom he would have been delighted to honor, but that he had had nothing to do with the affair before hand, did not know of it and had consequently not discussed the matter with any of those who might have been responsible for the happy party which he would never forget.

Among those who were unable to attend, on account of other arrangements and duties, were: Jack Womack, Philip and Ben Smith, Jesse McLendon, Dr. P. B. Jackson, Rev. W. B. Andrews, his pastor, B. B. Simmons, Ben Stollenwreck, and numerous others whose friendship Mr. and Mrs. Smith greatly cherish.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—President Coolidge is planning steps soon being the last one called upon to dispel the impression that he delivered a very splendid talk, stating that he was not only a neighbor to Blake but in this by marriage and that he knew him, he thought, mighty well. He concurred in everything said and went even further, if such a thing was possible.

Blake was then presented with a

WOMEN COMING TO HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 23.—The women of Pennsylvania are taking an active part on the politics of the Keystone state.

Both political parties have made concessions that will eventually have an important bearing on elections.

Reform seems to be the battle cry of the feminine bloc.

The State League of Women Voters, under the leadership of Mrs. John O. Miller of Pittsburgh has launched an intensive educational campaign to school the women of the state in exercising their franchise.

Revision of the state constitution is the principal plank in their "platform." A definite legislative program is drawn up each year and the league exerts considerable pressure upon candidates before election and of officials after their election.

Eight women received their baptism of fire in the state legislature in 1923.

Governor Pinchot bowed to the wishes of the women and was the first governor to name a woman to his cabinet. Dr. Ellen C. Potter is now serving as secretary of welfare under Pinchot.

The election of Governor Pinchot was regarded in a measure due to the influence of the women voters of the Republican party. He retains a large following among a group which has formed itself into the State Council of Republican Women.

Mrs. Barclay Warburton, daughter of John Wanamaker, is an active figure in this organization, while its policies are shaped for the most part by Mrs. Gifford Pinchot. Mrs. Washington Scranton of Scranton, another prominent woman socially in the state, is likewise associated with this group.

Mrs. Warburton is a member of the Republican State Committee and her influence is considerable. In some quarters, it is said, the decision to place both Governor Pinchot and a woman on the slate of seven delegates at large to the Republican Convention is due to her influence.

The women are from every section of the State. They are considered in many moves which the state administration or the leaders wish to make. Their position comes partly through social standing, partly thru their commanding position in the communities they represent and to a considerable extent through their knowledge of present day politics, absorbed by years of association and close study.

The marriage took place at 3:30 after which the happy young couple returned to Mexia to make their home in the new bungalow built as a model home by J. K. Hughes under the supervision of the News Publishing Company.

The happy newly weds are both receiving the congratulations of friends who wish them much joy and success and are glad to know that they are "at home" in Mexia.

HOW TO PLANT THE HOME GROUNDS

In planting shrubbery about the house to improve the home grounds, there are a few well-known rules that should be carefully followed. In the first place, never plant them in straight lines, but group them in irregular masses or as nearly like nature grouped them as possible.

Make Pencil Sketch of Grounds.

Before selecting the kind of shrubbery to be used and ordering same from the nursery, make a careful pencil sketch of the grounds and indicate where each shrub or tree is to be planted, keeping in mind that the front part of the grounds should be kept almost entirely free of trees and shrubbery. Of course these may be planted on the side front, but not directly in front as this would cut off the view, and that is undesirable.

Never plant shrubbery except in groups, unless it is some of the larger flowering specimens like Crepe Myrtle which can be used to decided advantage by planting it individually to the sides or to the rear of the grounds.

Never plant the shade trees in straight lines. Group them more or less in the way nature groups them.

Make Extensive Use of Evergreens

After the tentative sketch is made, indicating where the shrubbery and trees are to be placed, then select the kind and variety desired. It should be kept in mind that in the South extensive use should be made of the evergreen shrubbery, both the broad-leaved evergreen and the Coniferous evergreen. As a rule one-half to two-thirds of the shrubbery planted on Southern home grounds should be evergreens.

The Abelia Grandiflora is probably the leader among the broad-leaved evergreens for use on Southern home grounds. Its leaves are a dark glossy green and stay on throughout the winter. From early spring until frost it is a mass of beautiful flowers. It will stand heavy pruning and may be cut so as to grow high, low, or in any desired shape.

Some of the Leading Kinds.

Of the flowering shrubs that are not evergreens, Spirea is one of the leaders, and everyone should plant one or more clumps of this beautiful flowering shrub. Spirea Van Houtte, the common name of which is bridal bow, is one of the best. It produces a great mass of white blooms early in the spring. It grows quite high and a good arrangement is to plant the Spirea Van Houtte right next to the wall with lower growing Spirea directly in front of it, such as Spirea Thunbergi.

Then directly in front of the Spirea Thunbergi, plant a clump or group of the Abelia Grandiflora. This will give a mighty effective arrangement of these three shrubs. Of course these three are only a few of the many varieties that are especially suited to the South. Others that may be used very effectively are some of the Coniferous evergreens.

particularly the American Arborvitae and the Golden Arborvitae.

Still other flowering shrubs that may be used to advantage are Weigela, Deutzia, Hydrangea, Golden Bell, Lilac and Honeysuckle. There are many others that are well adapted to the South, but these are among the leaders.

By choosing from the kinds and varieties of shrubbery named above and grouping according to methods suggested, one can, for a very few dollars, very greatly improve the appearance of the home and add $500 to $1,000 to the sales value of the place.

The educational lives of A. & M. students were saved by the loans made from the ex-student fund which has been created by the recuperated association of former students. It is expected to increase this fund to $50,000 by appropriating part of the dues of association members to that purpose and thus aid all worthy students who need loans.

ON THE WAY DOWN TOWN

By SLYBOOTS

While coming down Commerce this morning on my way to town I fell in with John Sweat who while waxing reminiscent over the days before the oil boom told me a yarn concerning Ike Keys which I think good enough to occupy a few lines of print in this section.

One of the clubs of the city, he said, were putting on a play in the interest of charity and had selected as the play one of Shakespeare's immortal dramas. Mr. Keys, who had a part in the play as a page or something on the same order was supposed to enter the stage at a certain time and announce to the king that the queen had swooned.

At the time scheduled for his entrance he strutted in, garbed in all the gaudy habiliments of the period which the play was supposed to represent and, blushing at the plaudits of an admiring audience, bowed gracefully to the king, saying as he did said in loud clear voice: "Sire, the queen has swooned."

There was a stifled snicker from somewhere in the audience and then a roar of laughter over the whole room.

Mr. Keys reddened to the color of a beet and tried it again, this time in shriller tones. "Sire, the queen has swooned."

"Come off, idiot," said Frank Bolton, who was acting stage manager, in a whisper that could be heard all over the room.

But Mr. Keys wouldn't be downed. As he was dragged miserably off the stage he made one last, desperate effort, "Sire, the queen has swooned," he shouted above the roar of the hilarious audience.

EFFECT OF INDIFFERENCE

(From the Atlanta Constitution)
Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, in an address before a group of Indiana editors, charged the growing force of minority and blue rule to indifference of voters. And he is entirely right.

The alienation of political power of the electors themselves has actually culminated in minority governments in States and communities, and even in a measure in the Nation as a whole.

When primaries and elections are determined as they too often are, by exceedingly high votes, due to the indifference to the election franchise of citizens generally, then government, for such senators become the Federal law-making representatives of a minority of those charged with the responsibility of selecting such representatives.

Dr. Butler illustrated his point by showing that some members of the Senate were elected by from 9 to 33 per cent of the potential votes of their States. This is minority government, for such senators become the Federal law-making representatives of a minority of those charged with the responsibility of selecting such representatives.

Not alone should citizens arouse themselves to their great responsibilities in so important a matter, but election laws and machinery in every State should be so changed that a majority and not a minority must rule.

Trousers Are Going Towards Arm Pits

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Taking a peek at trousers of the present era, one finds that not only are they wider and longer, permitting that graceful drape about the ankles, but that they are becoming very high-waisted. In fact, in the best tailoring shops in New York, trousers are well on their way to the armpits.

Then, too, one finds that trousers are being made with little pleats about the waist. The purpose of this innovation is to enable the trousers to fit snugly at the waist, yet retain the long, straight sweep from hip to foot which is the fashion in clothes of the better quality. This is particularly true of dress trousers, in which class of clothing the ample trouser has always been a feature of distinction.

The high waisted trousers have led to a new type of vest. The conventional pointed vest is now giving ground to a vest that is almost straight across the bottom. The double breasted vest, which is somewhat popular, is cut straight across, while in the single breasted vest the points have diminished about 75 per cent and are now round instead of triangular shaped. However, shopkeepers predict early doom for the double breasted dress waist coat. It has had a slight vogue with wearers of Tuxedos and has been responsible for the wearing of white vests with the Tux, but for full dress wear, it didn't "take." The biggest New York haberdasheries are not going to carry them next season.

The man who has experienced difficulty in making his vest and trousers behave, i. e. who finds that every time he puts on his vest, it is the vest that is

MEXIA GUN CLUB TO HOLD FIRST ANNIVERSARY SHOOT FRIDAY MARCH TWENTY-FIRST

The Mexia Gun club will hold its first anniversary shoot Friday, March 21, the club being one year old on shoot one of the premier trap-shooting that date. Quite a little interest is being manifested in the coming event and visiting shooters will be in attendance from Groesbeck, Teague, and other neighboring cities.

ELKS DANCE FRIDAY A COMPLETE SUCCESS

The George Washington Dance given at the Elks Club rooms last Friday evening from nine to one was a complete success and was attended by what is said to be the largest crowd which has ever attended a dance given by the club. The rooms were decorated in the patriotic colors of red, white and blue, with American flags draped in conspicuous places. Music was furnished by the Elks Orchestra and Frank Werner at the piano and directing it in the absence of Charlie Clover who was sick and unable to attend. All during the dance refreshments were served to the dancers.

WHITE GIRL TO KISS NEGRO ACTOR IN SHOW PLANNED TO OPEN IN NEW YORK SOON

By FRANK GETTY

(United Press Staff Correspondent) NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Art stepped across the color line Friday and Mary Blair, white actress, consented to play the lead in Eugene O'Neill's forthcoming play opposite Paul Robson, full-blood negro.

Action of the piece calls for Miss Blair to kiss Robson, who is first her lover, then her husband as the drama of mixed marriage, "All God's Chillun Got Wings," unfolds.

A storm of criticism has been evoked by insistence of the producers, the Princeton players upon casting the negro for the leading male part.

Several actresses refused to play opposite him, in view of the story which calls for the white girl heroine gradually losing her mind as she lives with her negro husband, until as the final curtain falls she abases herself and kisses his hand.

Miss Blair consented, but refused to say what her feelings on the matter were. She is a Northern girl.

The management, commenting upon the interest, protest and indignation which the casting of the play has produced, said: "Paul Robson, the negro actor, is a man of histrionic ability and a fine gentleman. We expect to open the play at our theatre shortly after March 10."

The story of the play is laid in New York in the section known as the "black and tan belt." Eight children—four white and four black—play together and Jim, the negro boy, and Ella, the white girl, are childhood sweethearts. Later she takes up with a prize fighter, then elopes with the negro lover of her youth and they go abroad.

It is after they return to New York to the "black and tan" neighborhood, where they live with Jim's mother and sister, that Ella gradually goes insane, brooding on the race problem. At the end, Jim, who has an inferiority complex, as they say in Greenwich Village, fails to pass his bar examination. Ella is so happy that she falls to her knees, kissing her black husband's hand.

GUSHERS LOOK GOOD BEFORE "PLAY BALL" IS SHOUTED; OLD MEN ARE SIGNING UP

By HEK JR.

I dropped around to see Gray Forrest Saturday morning and found John Sanders, Rex Forrest and himself, discussing the possibilities of a championship team for the Gushers this season. They all gave me instructions to tell the followers of the great national pastime that the pitching ace of the Gushers, and one of the leading twirlers of the T. A. last year had just put his John Henry on the little dotted line of the contract Friday. To make it more clear and not to keep you all guessing we might as well say that Clarence Tiner will be on the roster of the Gushers for this season. They say that it was very amusing to hear him relating his experience in the Pacific Coast League and he is just tickled to death to know that he will wear a Mexia uniform again this season. Quite a few of the last years men have sent in their signed contracts and will be back to help the Gushers win a pennant this season.

Among those who have signed are Lefty McCaw, Bob Crow, Spike Schieffer, Squibb Gepper, and Gustavus Leedy. Mr. Forrest stated that Fawkes, the new manager, has sent in his signed contract and he also advises the directors of the club that he has signed for the Gushers a real man to hold down the initial sack, by the name of Joe Eaks. He states that Eaks should prove the best guard-man for initial bag in the entire league. Manager Fawkes also states that he has just about landed a real third sacker for the Gushers. It is beginning to look like Mexia will be in the running from the start.

Quite a number of rookies are under contract among whom is Otto Speaker, a cousin of the famous Silver Top Spoke. There are several players who have not sent in their signed contracts but it is not believed that all of them are hold-outs. Ludwick and Sanders, two of the Gushers pitching staff of last year, have not signed on the dotted line as yet. Carl Hill, stocky little right hander from Coolidge has not signed as yet either. Butler, Bryan and Bechtol, three hard hitting and excellent fielding guardians of the outer gardens are also on the list with Hill, Ludwick and Sanders.

The club directors are very anxious that all of the baseball fans be present at the meeting to be held Monday night at the Elks club at exactly 7:30 o'clock. Plans for the coming season will be discussed and the prospects for the Gushers will be given a thorough investigation.

France Adopts New Program

By WEBB MILLER

(United Press Staff Correspondent) PARIS, Feb. 23.—The Chamber of Deputies, after an unprecedented session which lasted through the night, at 7 a. m. today adopted the Government financial program.

The vote was 354 to 218.

The chamber voted on more than 100 articles during the night. Dawn found many dozing in their chairs and attendants had to awaken them at the roll calls.

Despite exhaustion Premier Poincare kept his seat throughout the session and made a brief speech before the final vote.

There already are rumors of happy results from the work of the commission of experts examining Germany's capacity to pay reparations, the Premier said, adding, however, that France must be prepared to bear for certain time the effects of Germany's defaults.

The experts, Poincare believed, will end the possibility of defaults in the future.

It is to cover that period of default, however, that I have asked the chamber to vote these new fiscal measures" (the Government financial program) Poincare said.

The program as adopted contains many important measures for bolstering French credit and defending the value of the franc, which slumped to nearly 25 to the dollar early this week. The last article of the project authorized issuance of seven billion francs in short term 1924 treasury bonds.

SCIENCE DEFEATING

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Once a year Uncle Sam posts the returns from the relentlessly waged battle between Science and Disease and Death.

To his legions of physicians he says:

"You are winning here," or "You are losing there." And in the sectors where the fight is going in their favor, they press it more vigorously, confident of their tactics. Where it is going against them, they take counsel and seek new methods of attack.

Uncle Sam, through his Census Bureau, has just published the returns for the year, 1922. Battle lines are being reformed accordingly.

Science and medicine, his figures show, are slowly winning against tuberculosis, the dread "white plague," which, for so many years, took the heaviest toll of all diseases; against diseases of early infancy, and those which permanently impair little children sometimes, such as scarlet fever, whooping cough, and diphtheria; against typhoid fever, pulmonary septicemia, and in preventing death through certain accidental causes.

But, according to his returns, the battle is not going so well against other major diseases. The fight seems to be losing against diseases of the heart, influenza and pneumonia, nephritis and Bright's diseases, cancer, diabetes, syphilis and many forms of accidental death.

The death rate of the 37 states of the United States which comprise the death registration area of the nation, from which the Census Bureau's figures are drawn in 1922, was 11.8 per 100,000, a slight increase over the low rate of 11.6 established in the preceding year. Actual deaths numbered 1,101,863 in 1922 against 1,032,009 in 1921.

To a heavy increase in the death rate from influenza and pneumonia, which jumped 50 per cent in 1922 over 1921, the bureau attributes the entire increase in the national death rate in 1922.

Yet the fugues for the nation as a whole are so encouraging as to cause medical officials of the government to regard the relatively poor showing against the major diseases, excluding tuberculosis, with equanimity.

Losses sustained against heart disease, nephritis and cancer, they say, are, in themselves, an indication of general progress in the battle. More people are living to the age at which they are liable to these diseases, they contend, and in great measure their increase indicates, not so much that the diseases are on the upgrade, but that science has prolonged many lives to years in which these diseases make progress. A quarter century ago the death rate was 30 per 100,000, now it is 11.8.

So the battle continues. In recent years, the average life has been lengthened by it from 42 years to 53 years, according to the insurance companies who deal in death. Science will confine itself to further study of those recalcitrant ailments which now seem to take the crowning years of life, with the expectancy of raising the average human life well above the Biblical three score years and ten. The goal now set is 75 years. Uncle Sam will tabulate the progress toward it.
